Palmer Electric Names VP of Commercial Division

WINTER PARK, FLA. – February 23, 2007 – Palmer Electric Company, a privately held electrical services firm, has named Van Tilley vice president of its commercial division. Tilley's responsibilities will encompass overall division management including business development, pre-construction services and installation. He has more than 25 years of experience in electrical construction.

Tilley completed a four-year electrical apprenticeship training program in Florida, and construction management courses at Clemson University Business Management Academy, Jefferson Davis Community College, Biloxi, Miss., and numerous Falls Management seminars. He currently serves on the board of the Central Florida Chapter of Associated Builders & Contractors.

“Van has consistently demonstrated his skill and capability for taking on the responsibilities of his expanded duties,” said Tom G. Beard, president/CEO, Palmer Electric Company. “We are proud to provide an opportunity for our team members to develop their expertise and reach their career goals,” he added.
